In the teaching profession there is room only for those of highest ability and superior qualities of character, mind and heart, if education is to accomplish its great mission, the amelioration of the race. Teaching is an art, and a high and noble art. It is a God-given art to cut a statue out of a piece of marble, which after all is only subject to the chisel of the sculptor. What nobler art it is to mould the character and the mind of the child--with its environments, home influence and temperament--so as to make it, morally, mentally and physically as nearly as possible, a perfect man or woman. The public provides, on the whole, liberally for the necessities of the community. If it could be made to see the great influence and the mission of education, then the respect for education and for the teacher will rise, and he will be accorded in every way the credit which he deserves. UNIVERSITY or PENNSYLVANIA, PHILADELPHIA, PA. THE AIMS IN TEACHING ALGEBRA AND HOW TO ATTAIN THEM. It should be the aim of algebra teaching to secure a part, and that a large one, of the values to be derived from the study of mathematics. These values are very well stated by Professor Abstract of paper read at meeting of Syracuse Section, December 29. D. E. Smith and Professor I. W. A. Young, with whose books you are...
