June 17th, 1881.-- Business meeting at Thirteenth Annual Convention. The President, James B. Francis, in the chair. The following report of the Committee on a Uniform Method for Tests of Cements was read by the Secretary: To the American Society of Civil Engineers. John Bogart, Secretary: The undersigned, Chairman of the Committee appointed to devise and report a uniform method of cement tests to your Society, desires to make the following report of progress: The Committee have had under advisement during the past year the matter of forms of test specimens, and of what kinds of tests should be employed, and such matters as are closely connected therewith. It is found the European practice generally embraces tests of mortars composed of certain definite mixtures, by weight, of cement and sand; that is to say, one weight unit of cement with one, two, three or four units weight of sand. No one can question the advisability of testing mortars containing the sand mixture, as in practice the bulk...
