End.--Yes, they were full of air and wind, and the train was a going at the rate of two miles a minute, and the cyclone a coming now at the rate of ten thousand miles per half second. The conductor put the old man s head out of the window to revive him, and he saw a telegraph pole bending towards the train, and before he had time to pull the old man s head in Int.--Oh, stop ! stop, I see it all now. The telegraph pole struck the old man s head and his brains were dashed out. End.--No, sir. The wind blew through his whiskers. (Business of working up the finish.) SHOES MADE FROM OLD MAIDS TONGUES. En Oman.--I met a lady from New York the other day, and she was telling me what a healthy town New York City was. I agreed with her and told her I was a native of New York City. She said she lived in New York three months. When she first came there she weighed only ninety pounds and now she weighs one hundred and fifty pounds. I said that s nothing, I was born in New York City, and when I first came I only weighed nine pounds, Now look at me. She was a fine looking woman she looked like a princess to me. Int.--We have no princess in this country. End.--Well, I tell you she...
