Woodruff School of Mechanical Engineering, Georgia Institute of Technology ; Washington, D. C. : National Aeronautics and Space Administration, 1988 OCLC Number: (OCoLC)66914662 Excerpt: . . . 4. 7 OPERATION The robotic maintenance module operation process is a robotic system and the main duty of the controller computerized is to monitor the operation of the module. The controller will have a scaled down version of the module on earth which by manipulating the earth module the lunar module will follow these actions. This will give the controller a better feel for what the module is doing. Otherwise the operation of the module wil be controlled by the microprocessors on-board in the following steps. 1. Follow the mobile lunar drill to the specified drill site ia a modified tow. 2. Unhitch from the lunar drill and extend legs to allow movement to a position in such a way so that the robotic arm may load the drill string. 3. Attach the drill dit to the first part of the drill string. 4. Load drill string extensions as required for desired depth. 5. Collect core samples and place in containers identifying the depth and bore number. 6. Unload the drill string extensions when drill string is being removed from the bore. 7. Hitch back up to the lunar drill and contract legs so that the drive wheels of the module will contribute to the motion of the vehicles to the next drill site. This item ships from La Vergne,TN.
